

Controversial speaker issue

Kirk gives balanced plan even odds

By KEVIN QUINN
Gateway News Editor

A resolution calling for a "balanced program" regarding on-campus speakers will go before the Board of Regents at the Nov. 16 meeting, and UNO Student President/Regent John Kirk said it has an even chance of passing.

The UNO Student Senate passed the resolution, a joint effort between the UNL and UNO student government associations, at its meeting last week. UNL's Student Senate passed it one night earlier.

In effect, the resolution would mandate that organizations administering speaker programs on the respective campuses "provide reasonable political and ideological balance on subjects of politics and government."

"The speaker program at UNO is extremely weak," said Kirk, who, along with former Student Programming Organization (SPO) director Steve Zabawa, developed the balanced program last spring.

"We felt there was a void in the program and I think this plan will really have a good effect on the issue."

"Also, it gives the students more control of their student fees," he said. Money from the University Program and Facilities Fee (UPFF), paid by the students at the beginning of each semester, is allocated to SPO to fund speakers appearing on campus.

"We think this plan will assure students that speakers from all sides of any given issue will have a chance to present their views to the students."

The joint resolution states that:

— The purpose of a speakers program is to advance the general education processes by offering a broad range of ideas on a variety of contests.

— Organizations sponsoring speaker programs must strive to provide reasonable political and ideological balance on subjects of politics and government. Speakers of differing views should be given a chance to speak within one calendar year of the original speaker's program.

— The organizations administering the program shall make every attempt to remain neutral and unbiased in the selection of speakers on the aforementioned subjects.

— UNL's University Program Council and SPO will organize committees that will have an ongoing responsibility to ensure that a balanced program is presented whenever possible.

— UPFF funding for political and ideological speakers will proceed through the same procedure that all SPO and UPC speakers are presently approved through.

— An open forum will give students from the respective campuses a chance to provide input as to the speaker selection on their campus. Also, UNO and UNL student senates will be solicited for input on speaker and topic selection each semester.

Kirk, who along with UNL Student President/Regent Bud Cuca will present the resolution at the regents' meeting later this month, said he feels the program has a "50-50 chance to pass the regents' vote."

"Right now it looks pretty good," said Kirk. "I'll have a better handle on it (the resolution's chances) in about a week and a half."

"Bud and I will be calling the regents individually and lobbying for the program. We've worked a lot of long, hard hours on it."

"We'd like to see an increase in the number of speakers on campus each year as well as an increase in the quality of the programs. The university is the last marketplace for ideas and expression of different points of view and we think this program will advance the educational process without pushing any specific political or ideological viewpoints."

Kirk said he was expecting definite opposition from one regent, Omaha's James Moylan.

"He has a firm belief in not assessing mandatory student fees, and on that principle alone we expect him to oppose us."

"But offhand, I really can't think of anyone else who would oppose it at this point."

Kirk traced the beginning of the "controversial speaker issue" to the winter of 1977 when Jane Fonda's appearance as a speaker on the UNL campus was protested by the Young Americans for Freedom (YAF).

"They wanted fee funding of all speakers enjoined because they believed the Student Government Association was biased toward the opposite end of the political spectrum" (in choosing speakers).

"After the YAF protest, the regents ended funding of all speakers on campus. That action came under fire because performers and singers couldn't rightfully be allowed on campus since, as some groups claimed, singing is a part of speech."

"The Board of Regents then changed the policy to halt only the funding of speakers expressing political or ideological viewpoints."

Magliery to senators: chance to change image

By GARY ROSENBERG
Gateway Associate Editor

Student Center Room 314 was filled to near capacity Thursday night for a meeting of the UNO Student Senate.

Thirteen newly elected senators were sworn in, joining the 11 re-elected legislators to form the largest turnout for a Senate meeting in some time. Six senators missed the first meeting of the 32-member Senate.

Chief Administrative Officer Mark Magliery greeted the new senators and told them they "have the opportunity to change the image of the past." Many students considered the Senate "kind of a joke and non-functional," Magliery said.

He advised the new senators to "remain detached, be objective and seek out both sides," and said they can be the revitalizing force in student government if they choose.

The meeting was significant not only in terms of numbers, but also in the issues discussed.

The Senate unanimously passed a joint policy and resolution concerning the re-establishment of a controversial speakers program. (See adjacent story.)

They also approved the appointment of Jamila Zeray to the Election Commission on a 19-4-1 vote. The resignation of commission member Mike Williams necessitated the appointment. Sen. Bob Hammond asked that the vote be tabled "in view of the controversy surrounding the election." The motion to table was defeated.

Hammond, Gary DiSilvestro, Nanci Hughes and Steve Jones were nominated by colleagues for the Speaker of the Senate position. The meeting was chaired by President/Regent John Kirk as Katie Rinn's term as speaker ended.

Near the end of the meeting, the Senate appointed Jones as Speaker pro tem. The election for Senate Speaker will be held at the next session on Nov. 15.

One budget item was addressed by the Senate. Ninety-seven dollars were allocated to Sens. Jones and Pat O'Neill to attend a United States Student Association (USSA) regional conference in Fort Hays, Kan. Nov. 8-10. Fifty dollars will go toward payment of USSA dues.

DiSilvestro reported that the Student Affairs Committee, which he chairs, had set its priorities at its last meeting. Number one on the list was the development of course and teacher evaluations to be available to students before registration.

The committee will also work toward passage of a bill sponsored by State Sen. Barry Reutzel which would give control of the University budget to the Unicameral, rather than the Board of Regents.

DiSilvestro asked the senators if they would be interested in hearing State Sen. Dave Newell speak on a proposed governor-appointed Board of Directors to replace the present Board of Regents for the University system. The Senate agreed to the talk after DiSilvestro noted that Newell would speak free of charge.

Campus Recreation Director Sid Gonsoulin presented the Senate with a slide show and speech on the soon-to-be-completed Health, Physical Education and Recreation building.

Gonsoulin had high praise for the building and said it will house "top-notch, quality equipment." He said that though the facility will be primarily academic or research oriented, "at any given time, there will be some open recreation activity."

"We're gonna have great academic and great recreational facilities," Gonsoulin said.

Matthew Stelly was given the floor near the end of the meeting and asked the senators to be prepared to listen at the next Senate meeting. He said Florene Langford's protest of the president/regent election would be presented and promised a "wing dang doodle" of a meeting.

More students seek BEOG

Eighty-three percent more students are taking advantage of the Basic Education Opportunity Grant (BEOG) this semester than last fall, according to Financial Aids Director Robert Pike.

"This was fully expected," said Pike. President Carter signed a law last year which raised the income limit on the BEOG allowing more middle-income students to qualify.

At the end of August, 1978, Pike said 888 basic grants had been filed. This year at the same time, 1,630 students had turned in their BEOG forms.

"This allowed us to deliver over $1.9 million in BEOG aid alone," said Pike. Last year the total was around $1.1 million.

Pike said the total aid coming from the UNO office amounted to about $5 million per year, helping over 5,000 students obtain an education. "We act as sort of a middle-man between the students and the Federal government," said Pike, "We take and process the forms and make the decisions and adjustments necessary to determine the amount the student will receive."

Pike said the office is planning on analyzing the amount of aid given and see how it correlates to the increase in full-time enrollment.

"We are not for sure at this time if we had anything to do with the increase of full-time students," said Pike, "But we think it may be a possibility."

Pike said students can still apply for the BEOG and apply it to the '79-'80. Students can still receive a reimbursement check that will retroactively cover the whole year.

More books available, UNO library to borrow from national system

The UNO library has joined a new system which allows it to borrow books from other system libraries, according to Karen Sampson, assistant to the director.

UNO will be able to borrow material from hundreds of other libraries as part of the OCLC Interlibrary Loan Subsystem, a computerized nationwide system.

"OCLC has location information for libraries nationwide. It identifies five sources and automatically notifies the library," said Sampson.

In the UNO library's Interlibrary Loan Service, the only charge is for postage and the cost of any photocopies. Requests are usually filled in a minimum of two to three weeks. For an additional dollar per request, materials may be borrowed through the OCLC.

UNO users of UNL and Medical Center libraries should obtain an identification number which will be used to borrow library materials through the Library and Information Retrieval System (LIRS), now available at the UNL and UNMC libraries.

Sampson says the UNO faculty, staff and students who plan to borrow library materials from those campuses should go to the UNO library's circulation desk to obtain this number.

According to Sampson, the UNO library will get the LIRS system sometime in the future, but no specific date is set.

UNO's Interlibrary Loan Office is located near the circulation desk and is open from 7 A.M. to 9 P.M. on Monday through Thursday. It is open Friday from 7 A.M. to 5 P.M.

UNO band cites lack of support

Dear Editor:

We would like to point out that an important group on the UNO campus has been overlooked. The UNO Marching Mavericks spend long hours with knees raised high and feet digging hard preparing for the musical entertainment of football fans at pre-game, half-time and post-game performances. Recently, the Marching Mavericks took time out of their busy schedules to travel to Vermillion for performance at the UNO/USD football game. Not one word was mentioned in the Gateway article on this game of the fine show the Marching Mavericks exhibited. We hope to see more support for the Marching Mavericks in the future.

B.L.A.C. calling for vote recount

Dear Editor:

We, Black Liberators for Action on Campus (B.L.A.C.), call for a recount, investigation, and finally a new election for the president/regent student elections held on Oct. 24-27. We believe that there are too many irregularities in the election commission's handling of the count for this position, such as the misplaced ballots, different quotes for the final count, and finally the resignation of one of the election commission's members. Not until this is done will justice be given to Ms. Florene Langford.

Employment fair to aid job seekers

Everyone needs a little extra money during the holidays.

Part-Time Student Employment Services might be able to help.

Part-Time student Employment Services will sponsor a "Holiday Employment Fair" Nov. 13 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the MBSC Ballroom to aid students in finding temporary full or part-time jobs over the se-

The fair will bring together Omaha retailers and merchants with students looking for seasonal work.

"It's a service both to students and the community," said Debbie Daly, supervisor of Part-Time Student Employment. "The employers will get a choice of qualified, highly motivated people and students can ask businessmen questions about the kinds of jobs available, hours, qualifications and salary."

The employers will be seated at various tables throughout the ballroom and students can visit with the specific employers they are interested in. The informal atmosphere will allow students to stay only as long as they wish.

Students can just bring themselves to the fair — no resumes are necessary, but Daly recommends familiarity with current references needed to fill out employment applications.

Some people were hired on the spot at the Summer Employment Fair, Daly said. Others were hired temporarily and later incorporated into the business full time.

Part Time Student Employment Services is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Monday and Tuesday evenings until 7:30 for students interested in other employment opportunities.

Will elections always result in controversy?

The recent Student government elections and controversy surrounding them bring several questions to mind.

Why, one wonders, can't an election be held that is smooth, effortless and without problems? Why is it that several of the elections in recent years have been controversial? The ballot box stuffing last spring and the Florene Langford protest seem to suggest that it may be time to review election procedure and ask ourselves if these two situations are merely coincidences, or if some change should be considered.

Florene Langford's protest of the student president/regent results this year raises other questions. Langford is, in part, challenging the rule in the Constitution that says the top two vote getters will participate in a runoff if no candidate receives a majority-plus one of the votes cast.

We can empathize with her protest and understand how she feels justified, when she missed qualifying for the runoff by only four votes. However, the Constitution is very clear on this point and it seems unlikely that any action to change the rule will come this year, if it comes at all.

Also, challenging the rule is valid, but accusing the body that enforces the rule (in this case the Election Commission) without solid evidence is another matter. Langford asserted in a letter sent to the Election Commission that a box of ballots was misplaced and that this is a sign of "incompetence, carelessness, neglect and lack of organization." Election Commissioner Kay Gardiner said, however, no ballots were misplaced, but that votes from two colleges were mixed together. The error was caught and corrected.

Another of Langford's points is that results from the student president/regent race were quoted to her over the telephone at 7 p.m. by an alleged member of the Election Commission. Gardiner said all commission members were gone by that time. Langford couldn't identify the member.

Langford's protest seems to be based on tenuous grounds. If she and her supporters have some concrete evidence of misconduct, let's see it.

Cliche Texan proposes Middle East settlement

By NICHOLAS VON HOFFMAN

Having OD'd on testosterone, the male hormone, John Connally has swaggered into the saloon, jumped up on the bar and proposed a Middle East settlement. But this hippopotamus-mouthed, Chamber of Commerce American, the living embodiment of the European's cliché picture of a Texan, can only be dismissed with the laughter he so richly deserves at our peril.

If Ronald Reagan falters, if he so much as comes down with a head cold and is therefore disqualified by age in the public mind, John Connally, the living, breathing, sweating, snorting practitioner of gonadal politics, becomes the odds on favorite to win the Republican nomination. It will profit us all to pay heed to what he proposes for the Middle East and in general.

What Dan Dynamite wants is for the Israelis to cough up all their conquered territories, even Jerusalem, and for the Saudis and the other "moderate" Arab oil exporting nations to agree to fixed production and prices for the dark black greasy fluids under their sandy deserts. In return for this, the United States agrees to guarantee the borders of this shrunken and diminished Israel against its neighbors' attacks and guarantees the political status quo in the various hereditary Arab monarchies against Russian or other communist attacks.

That, is essence, was the kind of a deal we had going with the Shah of Iran. It went wrong, as these things often do, because the communist danger to the shah's government, which we feared, wasn't the real danger.

To carry out our side of the bargain, the master of the Texas

Strut proposes a Middle Eastern NATO alliance. The members of the alliance would all be proven military losers, incompetents and weaklings like Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Jordan. The only two exceptions would be Israel and Japan, which Connally would invite to join. It is inconceivable that the Japanese would, since they remember the shabby and insulting way Connally treated them when he was President Nixon's Secretary of the Treasury.

Under the Connally arrangement, the Israelis would be called upon to play essentially the same military role that they are already playing in the region. The only difference is that, thanks to Connally, Israel would now be in a weaker position.

Connally correctly points out that Israel is costing us billions of dollars a year in economic and military aid. Billions he thinks his plan would eliminate.

In theory, it might, but in practice, it wouldn't since, in such an alliance of weaklings, we'd continue to need Israel's fighting forces. The Israelis may sometimes be a nation devoid of charm, may be in a morally indefensible position about squatting on land that doesn't belong to them, but from a military point of view, they are a bargain. For five or six billion a year, we get the best army and air force in the entire region and a set of magnificent bases for our own forces whenever we may need them.

In place of this, Connally wants to spend untold tens of billions creating another American fleet in the region and build a man a huge military installation in the Persian Gulf. Not a word as to how this grandiose demarche is to be paid for.

His ignorance of foreign affairs, foreign countries and the world economic system is prodigious. As Secretary of the Treasury he almost ruined Japanese-American trade and as a presidential candidate, mooing about marooning the Datsuns and the Sonys on the docks of Yokohama, he's threatening to do it again.

Courage is a wonderful attribute, but if a man has his guts where his brains belong, you know what's got to come out of his mouth.

'Forgotten American' Connally forgettable

By JOSEPH BRENNAN
Gateway Contributor

The 1980 election campaign began for me about four weeks ago on a Number 2 bus.

I was daydreaming about how Channel 7 would cover a midair collision between Skykam 3 and Action Aircam 6 when a billboard jolted me back to reality.

You see, someone named Allen Jones wants to be our next congressman. Who Mr. Jones is, what he stands for, I haven't a clue. I don't want to know. He may be assured, however, that he is at least one vote in the hole, as anyone who begins a primary campaign more than six months before election day has automatically closed my mind, ears, and what-have-you.

I'll make a deal with Mr. Jones, though. If he will kindly go hibernate until at least January, I will never mention his name again in print. If he's wondering what to do with himself for the next couple of months, he might try dismantling all the billboards bearing his name.

But, try as we might, we can't avoid it.

Teddy-mania is in the air, the pollsters are gearing up, and yours truly is already getting into arguments. Cheer up, gang, only a year to go.

If any doubts still linger, be advised that on the night of October 30th, at 9:55 p.m., the first prime-time television commercial for a presidential candidate was offered for public consumption. Starring John Connally.

John Connally wants to be your friend. He is the candidate of "the forgotten American." Who is the forgotten American? The American "who goes to church every Sunday . . . who believes in the fundamental moral values and principles on which this country was built . . . (but most importantly) who is tired of seeing the Stars and Stripes kicked around . . ." If a sense of deja vu has begun to envelop the reader, hang on: "Americans want a man with integrity (gulp!) . . . provide leadership . . . Sure (wicked smile), we have problems . . ." The Silent Majority, it appears, has a new spokesman.

Picture a Connally rally, for God's sake, never mind his politics. Marching bands, the American Legion, the Flag of course, and the sweet plastic smiles of Young Republicans dancing to "Love Will Keep Us Together." In other words, remember Nixon and Agnew in '68 and '72.

Connally will milk patriotism for all it's worth. Who, after all, wants to be accused of not loving his country? Not me, John. For instance, I love baseball. Honest.

Adlai Stevenson defined patriotism as "not the frenzied outburst of emotion, but rather the quiet dedication of a lifetime;" try telling that to a party hack.

Which brings us to Edward Kennedy. If Connally derives his support from the affluent and the "boobeisie," as Mencken would put it, Kennedy's strength lies with the chic, the trendy, the limousine liberal. And the press.

Kennedy is a reporter's dream. Great parties, for one thing. So many important people! Isn't it exciting? Battle-scarred New Frontiersmen will be coming out of the woodwork every day now. Let's see . . . there's Arthur Schlesinger, the "official" Kennedy historian (speechwriter), and Frank Mankiewicz and Richard Goodwin and Averill Harriman, content in his senility, and there's Rose, God bless Rose, and there's Joan and Eunice, and where's Jackie? Right next to Joe III, looking like a punk rocker, and there's Pat Moynihan looking a little embarrassed ("I thought I was over this"), and Ben Bradlee, who knows so many secrets about JFK's sex life, and Sarge Shriver and Ted Sorensen — the good Unitarian from Lincoln — and all of the kids, and Katie Graham and Hugh Sidey, and where the hell do you get a drink around here?

Edward Kennedy of questionable moral character? Of course not. Listen to his voice. A clarion call to idealism. Don't you just love the way his voice breaks, that marvelous Boston accent? Kennedy wilts under pressure, runs from responsibility? Never. Chappaquiddick was a terrible thing, but it sobered him. You're not going to bring up that old cheating thing at Harvard again, are you?

Connally v. Kennedy, 1980.

Get the mud ready.

The UNO Gay Action organization will hold a meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Rm. 302 in the Student Center.

All UNO students are invited to join in the study of the Bible every Friday at 11 a.m. in Rm. 302 of the Student Center. Everyone is welcome.

A Free Brunch sponsored by the UNO Hillel People will be held Friday at the Jewish Community Center, 333 So. 132nd, at 11 a.m. Assistant Prof. J. Rosenbaum will speak on the topic of "Sex in Jewish Law."

The UNO Department of Dramatic Arts will present Ira Levin's play "Veronica's Room" in the Studio Theatre (Adm. 214) Thursday through Sunday at 8 p.m. All tickets are $1.

A 5,000 meter "Turkey Trot" road run will be held Saturday at 9:30 a.m. in Elmwood Park. Entry fee is $4. Applications can be picked up in room 100 at the Fieldhouse. For more details call Campus Recreation at 554-2539.

Those people interested in signing up for either mens' or womens' 3-on-3 basketball should stop by the Campus Recreation office in Room 100 of the Fieldhouse. The games will be played every Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:30 p.m.

The CBA advisors would like to remind students who need academic advising prior to registration that the university will be closed Dec. 22-Jan. 7. It is imperative that students schedule advising appointments before the Christmas vacation.

Luchenbach boys delight, disappoint on new releases

Willie Nelson and Waylon Jennings, the kings of what has been called "progressive" country music, have reputations as being among America's finest country interpreters.

Both have remarkable voices, and share the kind of raunchy sensibility that make their new albums accessible to rock audiences. Willie's new record only adds to his outstanding reputation, whereas Waylon's stands as his weakest effort in years.

As a songwriter in the genre of country, Nelson has few peers. As a vocalist, he has none. Only Jennings, George Jones and Merle Haggard come close.

Nelson's singing is intense and evocative, and the man can turn a mediocre song into a minor masterpiece in performance. In his new album, Willie Nelson Sings Kristofferson, his ability to transform a song is quite apparent.

This album, of course, is a collection of Kris Kristofferson chestnuts. Most of these songs have been made famous by other singers such as Janis Joplin and Ray Price. The big surprise here is that Nelson brings absolutely inspired performances to these numbers.

One would expect that Nelson would let his name and the popularity of these compositions carry the record. Yet in each of these performances, he makes the songs his own.

Most of the songs have stood the test of time, and Nelson's interpretations are among the few that match the power of the numbers.

The band's arrangements are appropriately spare, subtly supporting the singer with modest empathy. Nelson's production, as in his brilliant Red Headed Stranger, is understated for a stark effect. Willie Nelson Sings Kristofferson may be his best record since that one. Now, if we can just have a new album entitled Willie Nelson Sings Nelson.

Waylon Jennings' album, unfortunately, leaves no room for inspiration. What Goes Around Comes Around isn't merely dull, its incompetent. There's nothing more depressing than mediocre music from a superior artist. Like Bob Dylan's Street Legal, Waylons' album falls flat because of amateurism and a failure of spirit.

The record's production, supervised by band member Richie Albright, is muddy and obscures the performances of the group.

Throughout this record ("I Ain't Living Long Like This" is the one exception) the singer sounds tired.

Waylon usually knows how to find memorable songs to sing, and every once in awhile he has managed to write one of his own. In this album, however, few of the songs qualify as more than filler. The one Waylon-penned track, "It's the World's Gone Crazy" has a line that seems to hold more truth than Jennings' intended: "The frontmen all want to go home."

I'll cross my fingers and hope Waylon rebounds from this one.

Wingnuts' tunes stimulate UNO soup slurpers

All that was missing was the beer, and if beer drinking had been permissible, the place might have gotten out of control.

Just about every element of a good rock and roll jam was included in last Wednesday's midday concert featuring the Wingnuts in the Student Center dining room.

A horde of students provided a standing-room-only crowd, which probably left a number of classrooms at considerably less than SRO. Some of Omaha's true blue rockers were on hand (So what if they weren't packing UNO ID cards?). There were even a few dancers, though their bouncing might have caused a few surrounding soup slurpers to get seasick.

The key ingredient of the lunchtime special was the spirited band of fun seekers (and creators) called the Wingnuts. Headed by 21-year-old guitarist-lead vocalist Joe Budenholzer, the Wingnuts displayed a wealth of class in their repertoire alone.

The group, also featuring drummer Dave Mathias, guitarist Jim Flemming, and bassist Dennis Burnside, seems to have one objective — to play a continuous stream of hard driving rock and roll — and draws from a wide range of selections in making up their sets. While their best material may be such Ramones cuts as "Sheena Is A Punk Rocker" and "Rockaway Beach," the Wingnuts impressed with renditions of early 60's tunes like the Kinks' "All Day and All of the Night" and the Beatles' "I'm Looking Through You."

Mixed in with new wave rock and roll tunes were a number of surfer songs reminiscent of the combo clash era. The Wingnuts took lighthearted fluff and added the force, the fullness missing from Beach Boys' records.

In fact, the Beach Boys would be embarrassed if they tried to follow the Wingnuts in a stadium concert because the Nebraska band does better versions of the California dream songs, and the Nuts can be heard around town for far less than concert price.

Especially striking was the clean cut, washed-hair appearance of the band that, from what I had heard about them on campus, was supposed to be a bunch of "punk weirdos." The group members looked every bit as collegiate as any of UNO's sports stars.

Fortunately, the stuff I had heard off campus about the Wingnuts proved to be true — the Wingnuts are just average Joes (though Budenholzer may qualify as a notch above) out to have and provide a good time.

A few people were not having a particularly good time. The brave Food Service lady assigned to bus tables in the dining room was visibly distressed by the decibel level, particularly when she had to pass by the speakers to check the tables

Some observers rolled their eyes and acted as if they were annoyed by the disturbance. For the most part, though, people bounced during the music and applauded enthusiastically at the close of each song.

When Budenholzer mentioned someone's suggestion to lower the volume, he was greeted by a chorus of voices shouting (more or less), "Don't do it!" And, fortunately, they didn't.

For the nifty Halloween treat (By the way, only one costume in the whole crowd), SPO deserves a healthy slap on the back. Let's hope they give us a lot more choice quality stuff.

Dear fair weather fans:

If any of you are offended by what you read here, just tap out a letter to me. I'm running short on paper airplane material.

This column, you see, is directed to all the fair weather fans who failed to show for last Saturday's UNO-North Dakota match-up. That's right, the other half of UNO's usual turnout that must have found three losses a little too much to bear.

It was a gorgeous day for football, with a sun-filled sky and a crisp breeze. The Big Red machine had rumbled down to Columbia, so Lincoln couldn't have been the attraction. The game itself had all the makings of a great battle, which it did turn out to be. So where was everybody?

We've got to let some people off the hook right away, the ones who normally work on Saturday afternoon and then come out to the football games at night.

We can even pardon the Big Red followers because Columbia is one heck of a party town on big game weekends.

But those of you who stayed home to hear Lyell Bremser on the radio or to watch "Too Tall" Jones make a monkey out of himself on national TV missed out on one of the truly bright moments in UNO football history.

As usual, Pat Couch and the Pen and Sword gang were there, just as boisterous as ever. The band, resplendent in their new threads, were at the top of their game.

And so were the Mav footballers, who tore North Dakota to shreds. Defensive captain John Small, celebrating the big victory at a favorite UNO post-game hangout, said he was a bit disappointed with the turnout but was appreciative of those who were there to share in the glory of what he termed the biggest win he'd had a hand in while at UNO.

Athletic Director Don Leahy said it was the smallest UNO crowd since 5,800 hearty souls sat in the rain as the Mavs battled Tennessee Tech three years ago.

If you'll recall, that was a Maverick team that made a habit of getting pasted regularly by opponents. Yet they drew 500 more fans than last week's important contest.

If you think I'm trying to lay a guilt rap on some of you out there, well, it's the truth. If the shoe fits, please wear it, but be sure to use the odor-eaters.

It's fickle fans who bring out the "pathetic" in "apathetic." How Important Was It? Granted, UNO's chances for a playoff spot may be remote, but they certainly aren't outlandish.

Saturday's win was very convincing. The Mavs outplayed the Fighting Sioux in every facet of the game, proving clearly that they were far from outclassed by the visiting powerhouse.

An 8-3 record and a win over the third-ranked Sioux, as well as the upending of several ranked Division II squads, leaves the Mavs in good position for strong consideration at the very least.

It Hurts Everybody: The furor over the North Central Conference's 42-man travel squad limit is more than just sour-grapes whining.

UNO's Sandy Buda may be one of the most vocal opponents of the ruling, but he's certainly not alone. North Dakota's Gene Murphy is adamantly protesting the rule after his squad's loss at UNO.

South Dakota's Dave Triplett doesn't like it either, though the rule gave his team the edge in a victory over UNO.

For the safety of the student-athletes in the NCC, the league should take a hard look at a reversal. UNO had a string of injured players dotting the sidelines last week, as do other teams in the league, simply because tired players were pressed into action, sometimes at positions with which they were not familiar. Let's think about them first.

'Too Little' Class: CBS and boxing itself should hang their heads in shame over the travesty featuring "Too Tall" Jones which purported to be a boxing match. Real garbage, that's all.

Does Life Have Meaning For You?

The Catholic Church believes that life does (or should) have infinite meaning for all. And we believe that the spiritual component for this meaning is an active FAITH which one follows on a daily basis. For this reason the UNO Newman Club, in conjunction with St. Margaret Mary's Church, is offering a lecture-study-discussion series, FUNDAMENTALS OF THE CATHOLIC FAITH. This program will be held on Tuesday mornings at 10 a.m. and repeated on Thursday afternoons at 2 p.m. Other times can probably be made for anyone who would not be able to attend at one of these times. The series will begin on Tuesday, November 13th, and be repeated on Thursday, November 15th.

- For Catholics who may wish to build upon the knowledge of their Faith learned as a child.
- For Non-Catholics, especially those who have no active Church affiliation and who would wish to explore the teachings of the Catholic Church.
- Participation in this program entails NO OBLIGATION to become or remain a Catholic.
- All programs will be held in the Suneg Center (Basement of the Church). Enter through the East entrance.

Omaha's biggest and only ski-swap sale gives flatland skiers a chance to sell and buy ski apparel. Retail and wholesale chains will also be on hand to offer everything from sunglasses to a new set of ski's.

Organized by the Omaha Ski Club, this annual event brings you up to date with what's happening in the ski industry. We'll have special demonstrations on how to use and care for ski equipment and there will be racers on hand giving tips on down hill racing.

Have something to sell? Drop it off Saturday, November 10th from 12 P.M. to 6:00 P.M. Want to buy something? We'll be open for business Sunday, November 11th from 12 P.M. to 6:00 P.M. All this is taking place at the Ramada Inn Airport, 2002 East Locust. For further information call Kim Smith at 345-1422 or Felix Quinn at 734-1184.

To walk through the UNO locker room last Saturday afternoon, one would have thought the Mavericks had just won the NCAA Division II national championship.

Smiling faces and loud, boisterous yells filled the room. Hand shakes and back slaps abounded. There was a giant release of pent-up emotion that had built up throughout what some called a disappointing 7-3 season.

It has been a season in which the Mavs saw their hopes for a North Central Conference championship slip through their fingers.

But that seemed to be forgotten following Saturday's 24-13 victory over North Dakota, the nation's third-ranked team and the newly crowned NCC champion.

Buda displays smile

In a way, the North Dakota contest was like a playoff game for the Mavericks in that they had a chance to prove they could play tough with any of the nation's top Division II football powers.

Of all the smiling faces in the winner's locker room none was more predominate than Head Coach Sandy Buda's.

"It was a great win over a great team," said Buda. "All the people have been talking us down lately, but our kids rose to the occasion and played a great game today."

Buda said the key to the Maverick victory was the team's togetherness and its devil-may-care attitude.

"Everybody played together and contributed to the win," said Buda with a wide grin. "We were loose today. We had nothing to lose and everything to gain."

Defense does well

"I was especially proud of our defense. Considering some of our players were playing out of position because of injuries, they did well. The first half we let North Dakota control the ball, but our kids stopped them in the second half."

Defensive coach Noel Martin was proud of the fact his Mavs held the high-powered Sioux running game to a 183 yards.

ADVENTURES IN ATTITUDES for YOU

The ADVENTURES IN ATTITUDES Program is a 30 hour course divided into 20 modules, presented in 10 sessions of 3 hours each or 3 sessions of 9 hours each. A qualified coordinator guides and times the participants through the 74 projects with the help of printed worksheets, printed supplementary reading materials, and 20 taped reinforcement messages.

Through a well-balanced, integrated usage of discussion, thinking, feeling, and role-playing, the program combines the Socratic Method with Transactional Analysis, Psychocybernetics, and other modern concepts to relate the practical principles of positive human dynamics to some of the most profound psycho-philosophical principles advocated by philosophers in Eastern and Western wisdom.

Its essential purpose is to create positive attitudes and to help the individuals overcome the negative attitudes which prevent them from realizing their vast inner potentials, and which affect adversely all of the vital aspects of their relations with others, with job, school, family, and with themselves. There are practical techniques for developing a more pleasing personality, building expectations, confidence and belief, making the best use of time, rectifying attitudes toward work, understanding others, and resolving people's conflicts, learning group dynamics and effective communication.

It conditions thinking for happy, successful living, for understanding and getting along with others, and for putting self in harmony with work, social environment future.

ADVENTURES IN ATTITUDES is now available for you:

Nov. 14 — 7 to 10 p.m. (for 10 weeks
every Wednesday night)
Nov. 16, 17, and 18 (8:30 a.m. to 5:30

Psyched-up Sutko stymies Sioux

"The defense just did a helluva super job," said Martin. "We've always been tough on the pass rush but we've had trouble against the run. But today we shut off their running game which is their bread and butter."

One reason for the Mavs' outstanding defensive display was linebacker Tom Sutko, who played perhaps the finest game of his career in the win over the previously unbeaten Sioux.

Sutko Stars

Sutko, a 6-foot-1, 225-pound junior, took part in a career-high 22 tackles — eight unassisted — and was responsible for perhaps the key play of the game when he intercepted a Tom Biolo pass late in the fourth quarter to preserve a slim 17-13 UNO lead. For his efforts he was named the Mavs' defensive player of the game.

"I felt I had something to prove today," said Sutko. "I haven't been playing up to my capabilities this season, so I decided to let it all hang out today because we had nothing to lose."

Sutko wasn't the only one to let it all hang out as Buda mixed in a bit of everything to delight a season-low turnout of 5,300 at Caniglia Stadium.

Included in his imaginative game play were such things as:

— A snub of an almost certain fourth-down field goal at the NDU 2 in favor of an unsuccessful attempt at a touchdown with the score knotted at 7-7 in the final period.

Fake kick

— A fake field goal attempt which resulted in a 12-yard touchdown run by Kurt R. Anderson with 1:11 remaining in the game.

— A halfback option pass by offensive player of the game Bobby Bass in the second quarter that was intercepted by Mike Voekler at the Sioux 15.

— A 57-yard field goal attempt by Mark Schlecht just before the half.

Most daring of Buda's gambles was the fourth-and-goal play that temporarily slowed the surging Maverick offense, which seemed to pick up more steam as the game progressed. However, on the next series, following a well executed 45-yard quick kick by Sioux fullback Milson Jones, UNO set sail on an impressive six-play, 49-yard scoring drive.

Leading the drive was senior quarterback Mike Mancuso, who finished the day with 14 completions in 21 attempts for 222 yards and a touchdown.

On the drive, the senior quarterback, who called the victory his "greatest win ever," completed passes of 23 yards to tight end Ed Lenaugh and 9 yards to Anderson to place the ball at the NDU 13.

Anderson scores

After Bass tested the middle for a 3-yard gain, Mancuso dropped back and threw a perfect strike to Anderson, who hauled the ball in at the 3 and twisted away from cornerback Jeff Compton to score.

Schlecht, who was good on all three of his extra point attempts, booted the ball through the uprights to put UNO ahead 14-7 with 10:36 to play.

The drive, which was capped by Biolo's 7-yard scamper into the end zone with 6:50 remaining, was set up by a 33-yard pass to tight end Paul Muckenhirn and a 29-yard run by Tim Hroza.

Trailing 14-13, Sioux Coach Gene Murphy faced a decision of whether to go for one or two points on the conversion. After much deliberation Murphy opted for the former, but Walt Cook's placement sailed wide to the right.

Record set

"We did a lot of thinking on that extra point," said Murphy. "We called timeout to try and decide what to do. For a minute there we were all ready to go for it. We figured if we got the two we could put the pressure on UNO and force them to pass and raise the chances for a turnover."

After Schlecht booted a 29-yard field goal to set a UNO career record of 16, the Sioux found themselves down 17-13 with 2:51 to play.

But North Dakota wasn't about to quit as they attempted to stage a rally beginning at their own 20 following the kickoff. Sutko put an end to such thoughts by pirating Biolo's fourth-down pass at the 31 and returning it 14 yards to the Sioux 17.

Four plays later the Mavericks set up for an apparent field goal attempt, but instead Anderson, the holder, stood up and raced around the right end to score on a 12-yard scamper with 1:11 to play.

"At first I didn't have an opening on the play," said Anderson. "But Ed Lenagh threw a great block and I just went over him into the end zone."

Led by the power running of BOBBY BASS . . . forced out of bounds by Terry Kadrmaz.

Hroza, the games' leading ball carrier with 124 yards on 24 attempts, the Sioux grabbed an early 7-0 lead by marching the opening kickoff 70 yards in 14 plays.

On the drive, Hroza gained 43 yards on seven carries, the last of which came on a 23-yard touchdown run with 8:52 left in the first quarter.

UNO knotted the score early in the second period when Bass, the Mavs' top ball carrier with 116 yards on 21 attempts, made a turning, twisting 16-yard dash into the end zone with 14:40 left in the half. The touchdown was set up by a 43-yard pass from Mancuso to wide receiver Mike Lowe that carried to the Sioux 29 three plays earlier.

UNO threatened to score again late in the quarter after Tim Rogers broke loose on a 67-yard run to the Sioux 21, but Schlecht's 57-yard field goal attempt four plays later fell just short of its mark.

After the game Murphy, who saw his team drop to 9-1 overall and 5-1 in the conference, said the Mavs didn't beat his team as much as the Sioux beat themselves.

"We took the game away from ourselves," said Murphy. "I'm not saying UNO didn't play an outstanding game, but we couldn't move the ball inside the 30-yard line."

Buda, who is optimistic of a possible postseason playoff berth, said the Mavs still have a chance but "We have to keep winning and get a lot of help from other people in knocking off some of the ranked teams."

Hannelore Reif

MARK SCHLECHT . . . breaks Fred Tichauer's career field goal record of 15 with this 29-yarder in the fourth quarter.

Mav baseballers' fall work to plug gaps

By ERNIE MAY
Gateway Sports Writer

Although the football season is at its peak, the UNO baseball team is just now putting the finishing touches on their fall practice, a practice spent trying to plug holes caused by graduation.

Gone from last year's NCC championship team are all-conference second baseman Mark Mancuso, NCC pitcher of the year Dave Bluom, and NCC player of the year Rich Shefte, who have graduated. Mancuso and Shefte combined for most of the battery power of the Mavericks last season.

According to UNO baseball coach Bob Gates, however, there is no need to worry. "We're just going to have to do a lot of different things to score runs," said Gates.

One of the things Gates plans to do is run, run, run. "We plan to do more running than ever before," said Gates. "We will be stealing, bunting and using the hit and run more."

Gates said that he was pleased with the accomplishments of the fall practice. "We worked on the fundamentals a lot," said Gates, "we've seen what our strengths and weaknesses are, but, we still have a lot of work to do."

The strength of the Mavericks lies in their pitching staff. Returning are seniors Lyle Simmons and Mike Fantaski, junior Dan Gomez and sophomore Joe Benes. Add to that freshmen Jeff Cherek and Chuck Hays, and you have what Coach Gates calls his "biggest staff ever."

Gates said that during the winter he will spend more time developing his young pitchers than he has in the past.

"All these kids have good attitudes," said Gates, "even the freshmen. They may not play a lot, but they show a lot of promise and will be counted on some time during the season."

Some question marks on the staff are Rich Onkka and Tim Hartigan, both of whom were injured last season and have taken it easy this fall so they can be at full strength when the season starts.

The weaknesses lie in the middle of the defense, where UNO must find replacements for catcher Bob Woodworth, shortstop Rich Shefte and second baseman Mark Mancuso. The top prospects for these positions are Mike Fantaski, Mark Martinez and Tom Neumann.

At shortstop, Fantaski has an edge over freshman Ron Jones, a walk-on from Millard, who can also play third.

The top candidate for second base is Martinez, who played third base last year. According to Gates he has been working out at second base this fall and "is looking very good."

At the catchers spot, Gates is looking at six players, more than ever before, vying for the starting spot. Senior Tom Neumann has the early edge over freshman Todd Kresnik, who led the Mavs in hitting this fall.

"Neumann caught the last 18 games last year when Woodworth was hurt," said Gates, "he has a good attitude and is always hustling." Although Neumann is not the fastest player on the team, Gates said he is the best base stealer. "Tom gets an excellent jump," he said, "and he gets on base a lot."

In the outfield, Gates said he is expecting a lot out of Joe Benes and Bob Billinger, although, he said he may play as many as six outfielders in a double-header.

"I plan on platooning quite a bit," said Gates, "depending on if there is a right hander pitching one game and a lefty the other."

"We will be using more than 10 or 11 players in a game this year," he said, "we'll be using the whole team to win with."

Gates cautioned, however, that no one has a position won. "Everything's wide open," said Gates. "We've had more competition this fall than ever before, and it should make us a better team."

Coach Gates said he was very happy with the play of the freshmen during fall practice. Some of the players who have surfaced are pitchers Jeff Cherek, and Chuck Hays; outfielder-third baseman, Todd Hendrickson and shortstop-third baseman Ron Jones, both walk-ons, and catcher Todd Kresnik and pitcher-outfielder Kirk Nelson.

Three other players Gates said would help the team out are junior college transfers Bryan Nelson, an outfielder, Bob Finochairo, a catcher who played high school ball for Creighton Prep and pitcher-first baseman Perry Maynor.

Although fall practice is over, the players have been put on a six-week program involving weightlifting, stretching and running to keep them in condition until practice resumes Jan. 14 in the Fieldhouse.

According to Gates, the Mavericks have a good chance to repeat as NCC champions if they can win some big road games. "Our toughest games are on the road," said Gates, "so we must win every home game."

Gates said that the stiffest competition will come from Morningside and South Dakota State, but that if the team plays the way they are capable of, the Mavs should repeat as NCC champions in the spring.

Subliminal Message

Ask anyone, about parking, to pick a more controversial issue and this will be sure to arouse even the Anger of at least a few. Therefore, as I've mentioned in this column Before, it is better than in previous years.

My duty, as I see it, is to Never to turn a deaf ear, But to listen and learn. Each of Us have a different need, work, & School are a combination which must be considered.

Can you find the message?

Verne's Views

Where Does the Money Go?

This is one of the more frequent questions I am asked during the year. Especially after someone has paid their fine for a parking ticket.

The money received by the Campus Security Department from the sale of parking permits and fines/penalties from parking tickets is placed in a special Parking Lot Account.

These funds are used throughout the year for

1. Maintenance of parking lots: re-stripping, repairs of the parking lot surface, parking and regulatory signs, snow-removal, and development of new parking areas.
2. Support of parking enforcement: parking permits, Rhino Boot, violation notices, appeal forms, Parking and Traffic Regulations, Parking Lot Specialists, computer programming needs relative to the parking records, and other various forms.

Visitor or?

The question of visitor status, in relation to parking, is an issue periodically during the year. Anyone who is not affiliated with the University of Nebraska at Omaha as an employee or student is considered a visitor.

A student who does not have class on Thursday, and comes to campus to use the library or seek advice from his/her academic advisor is still considered a student. If you are a night-student and have to be on campus during the day time, you are still considered a student.

Individuals who are assigned to various committees, and are registered for classes, and have a student parking permit are not eligible for Faculty-Staff or Visitor parking privileges on those days the committee meets. Use your student parking permit for student parking lots even when you are not attending classes.

Permits are not required for weekends or holidays.
